Grand Jury Indicts Former Club President for Theft after Evidence of Embezzlement Surfaces

Beaverton, Oregon – A Washington County Grand Jury has indicted Carrie Andrews, the former Tualatin Hills Dive Club President and BASE PTO President, on charges of Theft in the First-Degree following investigations by the Beaverton Police Department and Hillsboro Police Department into missing funds at both organizations.

In March 2024, Beaverton officers were contacted by representatives of the Tualatin Hills Dive Club (THDC) after members discovered financial irregularities within the organization's accounts. Detectives with the Beaverton Police Department's Criminal Investigations Division conducted a detailed review of the club's financial records between March of 2019 and November of 2023 and identified a series of unauthorized transactions totaling approximately $9,500 that were deposited and/or transferred into Andrews' personal bank accounts. Andrews had been working as an unpaid board member for THDC during the time of the alleged theft.

Further investigation by the Hillsboro Police Department also uncovered evidence of fraudulent transactions between April of 2019 and August of 2023 involving the Beaverton Academy of Science and Engineering Parent Teacher Organization (BASE PTO). Those transactions, totaling approximately $3,400, involved checks and payments intended for the school PTO that were instead deposited into Andrews' personal accounts. The investigation also gleaned that PTO funds were being used for Andrews' own personal gain/use as well.

Andrews was taken into custody and is currently lodged at the Washington County Jail as of this writing. This investigation remains open. Beaverton Police Detectives believe Andrews may have more victims. Anyone with information about these cases or similar cases involving Carrie Andrews should contact Beaverton Police Detective Tim Wilburn at 503.526.2280 or twilburn@beavertonoregon.gov.
